Freedom Park Bird and Butterfly Garden

Located at the Corner of Noth Avenue and Candler Park Drive

At 210+ acres, Freedom Park is one of the largest green spaces within the Atlanta area. A hidden gem located in the park at the corner of North Avenue and Candler Park Drive is the Freedom Park Bird and Butterfly Garden, a site for the reintroduction of native plants and shrubs for bird and pollinator habitat. Regular volunteer days organized by Freedom Park Conservancy and Beech Hollow Wildflower Farms have helped to enhance the site by removing invasive species and replacing them with native species. such as native Baptisia, purple coneflower, Georgia aster, and black-eyed Susan. , including native Baptisia, purple coneflower, Georgia aster, and black-eyed Susan. The garden was certified in January 2019, and it is really coming into its full beauty this summer. Among the many native plant species you'll find are goldenrod, cardinal flower, crossvine, American beautyberry, butterfly weed, milkweed, and passion flower. Be sure to make a quick stop and check out this delightful addition to Freedom Park.
